

Opposition hits settlement policy, mooted reshuffles Coalition defeats no-confidence

By ARYEH RUBINSTEIN Post Knesset Beporter

The coalition last night defeated five opposition .no-confidence motions, by a vote of 59-47. All the coalition members present voted against the motions, but Hiller Seidei (Likud-Abdut) was demenstratively absent. Moehe Dayan voted with the coalition. So did Yitzhak Yitzhaki, who bas guit the Likud and the coalition.

The motions were submitted by the Alignment, Shai, the Democratic Front for Peace and Equality (Communists), Banai and Sheli. Thay focused on the High Court'e criticism of the government's selzure of private land for Eilon Moreh, the unprecedented rate of inflation, and the numeroue plans put forward for resputting the cabinet.

The motions were also supported by Samuei Flatto Sharon (who bas generally voted with the government), Kalman Kabana (Poaici Agudat Yisraei), Assaf Yagurl (Ya'ad), Shulamlt Aloni (Citizeus Rights Movement) and Gldeon Hausner (Independent Liberals).

Minister without Portfollo Moshe Niselm, replying to the noconfidence motions, said that after the decision of the High Court of Justice the government would work to achieve "a positive edution to this problem in the Samaria region." He endorsed Dayan's statement earlier in the day that those (l.e., the Alignment) who favour territorial compromise and the Allon Plan do not want settlement in Samaria, But those who favour autonomy and living together with the Arabs are for settlement everywhere, including Samaria.

Amid considerabis heckling from the Alignment benches (despite the silenced microphones), Nissim said that the Alignment was in no position to preach to the government on the subject of land expropristion.

Addressing Alignment chairman Shimon Peres, Nissim asked: "Who sstablished Ofra under the guice of a work camp? Who conflecated private land for Kiryat Arba? Who confiscated 47 sq. kms. in Pit'hat Rafiab?" He accused Peres of baving gone coft on settlement just to win Mapam's support.

Alignment chairman Shimon Peres called on the government to resign before its slim majority down to 64 according to his reckoning - disappeared entirely. Presenting the Alignment no-confidence motion, Peres devoted a substantial part of his speech to the High Court ruling on Eilon Moreb. He did not see bow the government could squeeze out of the dilemma it now faced. It was inconcelvable that the prime minister would not obey the court's order: when the court recently ruled in favour of the government, egin bad commented with satisfaction that "there are judges in Jerusalem '

But Begin had promised in his early administration that "there will be many more Eilon Morehs." If the settlement is dismantled, as it must be, what would remain of the government's credibility?

About settlement pollcy in eneral, Peres asked: "If Judea and Samaria, because they were part of the bistoric portion of the Patriarchs, are part of the State of Israel today, wby did the govern-(Continued on page 2, col. 2)

Moshe Dayan's most likely successor, The Jerusalem Post was reliably informed, is Interior Minister Yosef Burg. After Burg gets back from the London autonomy talks. Begin will try to percusde the reluctant cabinet doyen fast spproaching his 71et birthdsy, to change his mind and become foreign minister.

Moshe Dayan's resignation took effect st noon yesterdsy and Premier Begio became acting foreign minister, as stipulated by law.

Begin reportedly feels that Burg is closer to him politically and personally than either of the other two ministers rumoured to be in the running: Deputy Premier Yigael Yadin and Justice Minister Sbmuel Tamir. With Yadio there would always be the possibility of a conflict between Democratic Movement policy and the policy of the coalition majority. With Tamlr, The Post was told, Begin could not easily build the manto-man relationship required between s premier and his foreign minister. In any case, giving the DM such a crucial portfolio as Foreign Affairs would mean taking away one portfolio to preserve intra-coalition balance. Labour Minister Israe Katz would be the ioser, and the DM would not easily agree.

Although Yadin's ewitch to the Foreign Ministry would leave the deputy premiership free for Finance Minister Simhs Ehrlich, Burg's switch would make it possible for Ehrlicb to become Interior minister. One Likud minister told The Post: The Liberals want a serious port folio inetesd of finance, not a decorative deputy premiersbip. 'And this scenario paves the way for Ylgai Hurvitz to become finance minister.'

The Post tried to check reports that Begin might seek a candidate from outside the cabinet to be foreign minister, instead of choosing between Burg, Yadin and Tamir.

It was generally agreed that Knesset Speaker Yltzhak Shamir, who might jump at the job, is too hawkish for Begin's taste and would upset the delicate balance between hawks and doves in the cabinet.

Prime Minister Menahem Begin wants to give the Gush Emunim settlers at Ellon Morch a new site as close as possible to the one they now have to leave. The High Court of Justice on Monday ordered the settlement dismantled within 30 days because it was built partially on privately owned Arah land fmproperly expropriated Begin's aim is to bave the settlers evacuate the disputed land within s month, as the High Court ordered, but enable them to remain near Nabius.

At Begin's request. Agriculture Minister Ariel Sbaron has begun sounding out the mood of the Eilon Moreb settlers and examining the status of the lands in the vicinity, with s view to locating new plots to replace land belonging to Arab farmers.

At the same time, since there are few state lands near the present site. Begin plans to assuage the anger of Gush Emunim at the High Court decision by speeding up the cabinet discussion on six new settlements in Samaria and the Jordan Valley.

Detsils of the plans for such settlements have already been tabl-ed in the cabinet in booklet form.

The discussion is on the cabinet agenda. It would have come up last week but was postponed because the cabinet spent four hours talking about pians to expand seven existing settlements.

Although Begin knows be may arouse antagonism abroad by a cabinst decision to set up six new villages, he believes this is the only way he can prevent an irreparable rift and a violent confrontation with Gush Emunim. Begin is said to hope he can euccessfully explain to Washington his dilemma with Gush Emunim

Israel Radio plunged the Knesset into an uproar yesterday with s report that Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon bsd tbreatened (to Begin1 that he would resign if the Eilon Moreh group was removed from its present site. According to the radio report, Sharon told Begin his credibility with the Elion Moreh settlers while studying the possibilion Monday morning that "he could not remain s member of a government which dismantled eettlements in the areas," and Begin admitted to Sharon that the High Court judgment put the government in "an extremewould first have to atone for his sup-port of Camp David, and so he would have to cool his heels swhile." ly difficull situation."

Promising to support the govern-ment in the no-confidence vote later in the afternoon, Dayan added that bis future stand would depend on the specific issues concerned, though he would prefer to see the government serve its full term of office.

Dayan's press conference, in the jam-packed auditorium of Jerusalem's Belt Agron, began at the hour his resignation went into effect. Dayan denied that the resignation had been provoked by any single "last straw." Rather, it was caused by his differences with the concepts of the Likud and the National Raligious Party on relations between Israel and the Palestinian Arabs.

Discounting a future hardening of cabinet policies, Dayan pointed out that a fortnight prior to the Eilon Moreh decision the government had decided against expropriating private lands for the expansion of seven settlements.

Third group to be given sanctuary 197 Viet refugees arrive in Israel

By MICHAL YUDELMAN Jerusalem Post Reporter

BEN-GURION AIRPORT. - One hundred and ninety-seven exhausted Victnamese refugees descended the ramp of an Ei Ai jet at 8 a.m. yesterdsy and took their first hesitant Comprised of refugees who bad bcen in camps in Thailand, Singapore and Hongkong, and some 40 who were reecued at sea by the Israell ship Zim Sydney, the group is the third to be taken in by Israei. They were flown from Manila to Athens by Korean Airways, and there boarded special El Al flight 1452 to Israei.

Some of the refugees carried small cardboard boxes, containing all of their worldly possessions. Many of the women carried bables. Other refugees had nothing at all but the light summer clothes and rubber sandals they wers wearing.

Some 50 former Vletnameee refugees, now established in Israei, greeted the newcomers with Israeli flags and flags of the now-defunct South Vietnam government. Posters in Vietnamese, Englisb and Hebrew proclaimed: "Israei — the hope of the Vietnamese people," "Our deep gratitude to the government and peoole of Israel" and "Israel has saved our lives."

The refugees seemed confused and overcome by the enthualastic weicome. As they moved towards the alroort building they gazed with consternation at the cheerful faces of their Israeli compatriots. Some of them smlied hesitantiy back and waved the little Victnomese flags ihey had been given. One tiny toddler dropped his pants

A number of cabinct ministers are convinced that Moshe Dayan's frustration at playing a marginal roic in the autonomy talks was more Important in his decision to resign than his aileged political differences. but that personal considerations word still weightier in his decision than any other reasons.

Ministers told The Jerusolem Post that they felt Dayan was concerned lest his health might not permit him. over the next couple of years, to devote time and energy to a book about pcace with Egypt. They said that Dayan's feeling of obligation to the cabinet, while in his present mood of frustration, was far outweighed by his desire to carve out his niche in history while he still could.

Dayan has recently complained of aches and pains of various kinds. He pians to take further medical tests, It is understood, possibly abroad during one of his speaking tours. Dayan, The Post was told, felt incapable of citing his personal problems, or his aspiration to document the Israel-Egypt peace agree-ment, as the main reasons for resigning. Hs believes he can preserve a better political image by cialming he disagrees with government policy.

One Liberai minister told The Powl: "To this day nobody, except perhaps Prime Minister Menahem Bsgin, has heard convincing political reasons for Dayan to resign, which be could not have known about or anticipated when he first joined the govsrnment."

Dayan apologizes for 'lack of diplomacy'

Post Dipiomatic Reporter Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan, taking his leave of the diplomatic corps at a reception in the Foreign Ministry yesterday, apologized for neglecting routine diplomatic ac-tivitles. "I had my bands full with the peace talks. I would not have agreed in the first place to serve as a routine foreign minister," he said. After the doyen of the diplomatic corpa, Dominican ambassador Jose Villanueva, expressed the apprecia-tion of all to Dayan, U.S. Ambassador Sam Lewis, in a departure from protocol, asked to speak. "I can testify personally that from the start, at Camp David and elsewhere, there were many instances in which the process appeared deadlocked. he aald, "Along cams Dayan and made untiring efforts till he found a solution to the problem."

U.S. envoy Habib in Beirut with 'American solution'

BEIRUT (AP). — U.S. State Depart-ment ranking diplomat Philip Hablb arrived here yesterday to propound what officials described as an "American solution" to the Lebanese crisis.

Habib's mission here will coincide with the arrival of Arab League secretary-general Chadli Klibi wbo, according to Lebanese officials, is to offer an "Arab aciution" to the same problem.

The American envoy also is to visit Syria, Jordan, Israel, and possibly France and the Vatican in his quest for a settlement to the four-year-old Lebanese crisis.

Habib, who is of Lebanese extraction, will hold talks with Lebanese officials here, but not with leaders of the Paiestine Liberation Organization.

The Lebanese state radio has been reiterating that Habib will propose beefing up the eight-nation, 5,800-strong UN peace-keeping force in Southern Lebanon with an additional

Censored part of Rabin's memoirs: Harel Brigade drove out 50,000 Lod-Ramle Arabs

By WOLF BLITZER Jerusalam Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON. - Former prime minister Yitzhak Rabin has described in a first-person account the ex-puision of 50,000 Palestinian civilians from their homes in Ramle and Lod during Israel's 1948 War of Independence. He attributes the final order to the late prime minister. David Ben-Gurion.

Rabin's description, contained in a consored portion of hie recently published memoirs, was reported ycsterday in "The New York Times," which said it had obtained a copy of the original manuscript from Perstz Kidron who translated the book into English.

The account, which does not appear in the finai Hebrew or English versions of the book, was delcted by a board of censors consisting of cabinet ministers and headed by Justice Minister Shmuel Tamir. 1By law former government officiais must submit their memoirs to a board of censors.)

Rabin's description, as reported yesierday, opens with a meeting that included him, Ben-Gurion and Yigal Allon, Rabin was then commander of the Harel Brigade, which was trying to eliminate Arab Legion bases along the Jerusaiem-Tel Aviv road. It sald, in part:

Any future Labour government will have to honour agrasments made by its predecessors as well as look after the Interests of Weet Bank settlers whose homes are no longer in areas under Israeli rula, Labour party chairman Shimon Peres said yesterday.

Speaking to West Bank reporters at a press conference in Jerusalem, Perce also expressed the belief that both Jordan and Egypt would prefer to hold peace negotiations with Israel on the basis of UN Security Council Resolution 242 of 1967.

The Labour leader forcefully defended his party's "Jordanian op-tion" and argued that "if Isran's aid yes to the PLO then what remains of Jordan'a support would disappear."

An agreement with the Hashemite Kingdom, he insisted, could lead Labour to its goal of demilitarization of the West Bank with the IDF staying along the river. This might taka place in two or three stages, in the form of "Interim functional agreements," he said. He dismissed recurrent statements

ARAD. - Actor Peter Strauss will descend today from the styrofoam replica of Masada one kilometre from the real thing and fly to London for a checkup et the School of Tropicel Medicine.

Strauss, who is playing Zealot leader Eleazar Ben-Ysir in the Universal Studios-ABC Television production of "Masada," apparentiy drank contaminated water in the West Bank while filming the first segments of the eight-hour television 'mini-series."

For the past two months he has suffered from either "mild cholera" or parasites, as have many other members of east and erew. Meanwhile, Peter O'Toole today resumes his command of the Roman ermy's 10th Legion. O'Toole, who plays Flavius Sllva, the Roman who laid siege to Masada, recently had a cyst on his eye lanced and stitched at the Soroka Medical Centre in Beersheba.

The film company, which has been working under very difficult conditions and in extreme heat, has another month of shooting left. The budget of the film, reportedly the most expensive TV mini-scries ever made, is now estimated by producer George Eckstein at around $20m. of which $10m, will be spent in israel,

The drug, termed a "breakthrough" by the American Society of Contemporary Medicine and Surgery, is said to reduce the frequency of urination and the need to get up eeveral times a night for relief. Caine eays the drug, called phenoxbenzamine, works by relax-ing the smooth muscle fibres around the prostate, although it doee not reduce the size of the enlarged gland. He described the drug in an article that appeared recently in "Comprehensive Therapy." Dosage, according to Caine, need be only one or two capsulas a day and, because the effects of the drug are cumulative, the treatment may be intermittent. Thus a patient can discontinue use of the drug, and resume taking it only when symptoms reappear. According to the American society, the new drug "may rank as one of the major medical advances of the 1970s. Many middle-aged and elderly men may at least be relieved of the symptoms of urinary obstruction caused by this disorder without resorting to surgery."

The drug is not yet available in the U.S., however, and is awaiting the needed approval by the U.S. Food end Drug Administration.

THE RESPONSE to a recent column on the aged has been immediate and varied. There were some kudos, but also some boos. To the people who ssid nlee thinga, my heartfelt thanks; to those who were critical that my generalities raised and left unanswered too many questions, my apologics and some specific answers to your queations. Mrs. JMB said, "Every time I run over to visit my mother, which is at least three or four timee a week. there is come comment made about the time. I never spend enough time with her. I cither come too late, or I lcave too carly. It seems as though I cnter and leave with an apology. which I make automatically, bui which I resent making, because I just don't think I've done anything so awful. It's not always easy for me to get across town for a visit, but my mother just doesn't seem to understand this." This was only the essence of a long talk in which ahe expressed trustration, anger and then guilt.

Mrs. JMB is indeed a very busy woman. She is married, has three children still in school and works just short of a full-time job. Her daily hours are circumscribed for ber by the job, the children's schedules. family mesitimes, etc. Her mother, who lives alone and has all day to clean her house and do her chores lor not if she ao chooses) acems to be completely unable, or unwilling, to make allowances for her daughter's busy schedule. At least, that's the way it seems to Mrs. JMB.

Mrs. JMB doesn't need to feel guilty about either the frequency or the duration of her visits. What she needs is to understand that old people have a special view of time and that her mother is just as serious about her time as Mrs. JMB is about her's. True, the daughter has no extra time in her busy day. But then, ber mother has no extra days. So mother, like any elderly person llving alone, tries to make her days as full as possible and arranges a daily schedule that becomes just as demanding of her time as daughter's many obligations are of her's. If she knows that her daughter may be around to visit, but not exactly when, ahe spends ber day in a kind of limbo. Her schedule is shot, because she's afraid to go shopping at her regular hour. She may even forgo her nap or afternoon walk, because she's so busy waiting.

The way to handle this is to set a specific time, and perhaps even a duration, for the visit. Instead of saying, "I'll pop in to see you sometime tomorrow," say, "I'll visit on my way home from work from 3:30 to 4:30." This may seem an exceesively formal way of bandling an informal visit, but for Mother It eliminatee the waiting, the uncertainty and possibly the fear that daughter might not show up at all. For JMB this means an extra telephone call and an extra "mustbe-done-on-time" chore. This is difficult for daughter to accept - not because of the extra task so much, but because of the difficulty of accepting the need for such a conces-ajon on her part. After all, ahe is very proud of her mother's ability to manage independently and quite un-willing to admit to her limitations. Further, Mrs. JMB sald to me, "But she will want me io stay longer than the time arranged." The answer to that is that if mother is capable of living alone, she is capable of accepting the necessity for a short visit. Better a short visit than none at all.

Dealing with parents

ALL IN THE FAMILY Eleanor Harris

MY FRIEND LK was disappointed because nothing was said about "forgetting." All of us forget sometimes, but only for the aging docs forgetting have such frighten-ing connotations, because lapses of memory - more than any other symptom — ie so commonly accepted as the sign of creeping scnility. A young professor may mlsplace his notes or lose his wallet, and his abcent-mindedness is seen as confirmalion of hls genlus; but lf Grandpa mislays his house key or neglects to pass on a telephone message, that dreaded word immediately comes to 'senility' mind. When an elderly person is told, no matter how gently or kindly. 'You must have forgotten," It is con firmation from someone elee of his worst fear.

Hc knows all too well that he no nger functione as he once did, and that he is just as vulnerable as any of his age mates to illness and decline. but when others notice his forgetfulness, then things must be getting even worse than he thought'. In the normal course of family interrelationchips, there are many opportunities for forgetting and then mak-ing that glibbeet of all apologies: "Sorry, I forgot." But if one applies this same procedure to an older per-son and tries to forgive or comfort him by saying, "Never mind, you just forgot," one is being hurtful in-atesd of helpful.

There is a sequel to this kind of interchange. Different oldsters, depending on personality and degree of compsience, react to such refrigerator, a dresser top overflowing with hits of paper, hecause it's the risky to put them out of sight into a drawer. This may seem laughs ble to younger people, but it is very adaptive behaviour for living alone. Other people react quite differently. Some hecome so frightened, or angry, that they deny or avoid fueing an unpleasant reality and resort to behaviour that is not only unrealistic, but also may ul. limately be dangeroua. They become quarrelsome or spitcful and do things beyond their strength or capacity in an effort to demonstrate competency. They may atubbornly insisl that "I know my way around this city" or "I can drive as well as I ever did," etc. In an effort to deny lhcir limitations. And having made the proclamation, they feel the need to live up to lt.

The rule is that there is no justification for reminding someone of his infirmilies, and certainly not of one as emotionally charged as loss of memory. Even If you are absolutely certain that your loved one would react adaptively, it's better to just hang the kcy or post the refrigerator list without talking about it. If a person is consistently forgetful, then the help he needs is more than verbal. If it only happens occasionally, forget because he is not too different from the rest of us.

FOR DR. J.A., who asked for some reading material, here are three good aelectiona, available from Sifrlat Hapoallm publishing house. "Later Life" by Lewis Aiken, is a paperback describing the American scene. It is concerned mainly with how people in the U.S. live, rather than with what they are like. I include this only because it has a marvellous bibliography including American government agencies such as the Departments of Labour, Health, Education and Welfare, etc., offering the public mountains of informative publications for free or for very little.

"Action with the Elderly: A Handbook for Relatives and Friends" by Kenneth M. Keddie, also s paperback, is based on experiences in Scotland, but should be relevant to people anywhere. Written in elmple language and accompanied by humorous line drawings. It docs tend to talk down to the reader. But in between the clichee about how people like to be kept busy, there is some very solid material about how it feels to be old, how old people think, about common likes and dislikes. As the title indicates, this is for people who want to give of themselves in offering their time and their aervices in an effective manner.

"Psychology of Human Aging" by D.B. Bromley, was published by Pelican in 1966. This hardcover text for the psychologist, social worker or other professional directly involved with the care and treatment of the elderly is not the sort of book one would buy for easy reading, or to keep on the shelf. If, however, you have access to a university library and need technical knowledge, it is well worth spending some time on it. It is authoritative and scholarly, and the book's divisions make it possible to find sought-after material easily.

I do hope that I've answered the queations for those who were intereated enough to raise them. be pleased to answer readers' questions in this columo whenever possible.

A flat in Kfsr Haseldim was sold by a housing company to the Housing Ministry (as pari of e scheme for accommodating large fsmilles1 while it was occupied by 6 person who had paid most of the purchase price. When he came to psy the halence, the hank told him that the ministry had paid the money in his place, and that the apartment was now theirs.

The victim "rao during a period of several years from one office to another - from the housing company to the ministry to Amidar. Each agency washed its hands of responsibility, though every one of them knew that a mistake had been made. But they dld not lift a finger. separately or collectively, to set things right." His rights are now restored — sfter the Ombudsman Intervened.

This is one of the episodes related in the 8th Annual Report of the Public Complaints Office (which comes under the state comptrolier), tabled in the Knesset yesterday. During the year 1978-78, a total of 6,-832 complaints were submitted and half of them were found to be justified, the report says.

Half of complaints justified, ombudsman finds

Some of the cases contained in the 8th Annual Report of the Public Complaints Office were referred to the attorney-general for legal action, writes Post Reporter

Some of the stories reveal errors and shortcomings that could occur from time to time in any service. But s good many indicate rigid sttitudes end hurcaucratic routines which need correction. The Kneeeet Committee on the State Comptroller's Report gives attention to these issues, as shown in the sppendix. Several casee were brought by the omhudemen to the notice of the attorney-general, for legal action.

Eye trouble

A person needing eye treatment applied in July 1878 to Kupat Holim in Jerusalem. An appointment was fixed for two months later, but wheo he came he was told that the eye doctor had gone abroad. A new appointment was made for November. This time he was informed oo arrival that Book confusion the physician in question had resigned and thare had been no replacea university, and required that the fact of the doaation be inscribed on After protesting, the insured per-son was sent to s hospital, which fix-

The authorities offered to make redress by naming a whole section of the library in the donor's name, to no svall. In the end they had to pay her IL25,480, the estimated value of the lost works. She gave the sum to s charitable Institution.

A prisoner in a gaol complained to the Ombudsman that he had beea beaten up by four warders. When they heard he was lodging a com-plaint, they submitted a complaint of their own against him. The omhudsman confirmed that he had indeed been hrutalized, and transmitted the incriminating material to the attorney-general.

formed whether an autopsy had haen carried out (to determine the cause of desth), nor was he told what happened to the foetus.

An enquiry revealed the following. The anaesthetic as originally administered did not work, so the anaesthetlat gave the patient another drug witbout the surgeon's knowledge, though this particular type might be dangerous for a perundergoing a Caesarean. He then left the room to deal with a case elsewhere, leaving the supervision to a doctor inexperienced in this field. Whea the surgeon, who had been preparing for the operation, appeared on the scene, the woman was already in her dsath-throes. Nothing could be done to save the hsby, because all ettention was devoted to trying to resuscitate the mother.

The ombudsman referred this case siso to the attorney-general for possible prosecution.

Housing loan run-around

Housing loans on epecial terms are available in the development areas lor individusis in essential occupations.

A nurse settling in Carmlel was told to bring a certificate attesting that she belonged to an essential occupation. She was under the impression that she could not get such a certificate until abe secured a poat at the local hospital. But shs could not take that post until she had a flat to llve in.

It was a vicious circle, as ehe pointed out to the Housing Ministry. They urged her to settle for the ordinary loan, available for young couples. When she was in a po sitio to produce the requisite certificate.

they would change its terma. moved into the flat, got the job. and promptly auhmitted the certlflcate; whereupon the ministry refused to change the terma of the loan

Wrong number, wrong amount

The telephone number of Magen David Adom in Afula was changed but directory enquiries at 14 continued to give the old number; so did the latest telephone book (though published after the change); so did newspaper notices announcing which first-aid etatlons were open at olght.

A volce on a disc, supposed to relay the new number to telephone callers, was not installed. Sick people seeking medical attention and dialling the only number they knew, just got a continuous engaged signal. The ombudsman made sure that the disc was duly affixed, until a new correctad telephone book was puhlished.

Not infrequently, chance com-plaints have brought shout salutary reforms. An old lady received too large a pension over a period of time, through no fault of ber own. On discovering the error, the National Insurance Institute started deducting 10 per cent from her (now corrected) monthly cheques; in order to recover the money.

At the instigation of the ombudsman, the principle has come to be accepted that sucb deductions shall not be mads in the future, if the recipient was innocent of blame and If the deductions would cause

Cases investigated sometimes reveal a gap in the regulations. A person was charged IL 50,000 for ad-KAMPALA (Reutsr). - All traveliers entering Uganda this missioa to an old-age home. Would ha get the money back if it turned out that he couldn't settle in that particular home and wanted to leave it? The answer was no.

Ministry's attention to the fact that the rules concerning the running of retirement homes contain no proviaion about the financial aspect, and something should he dona.

Tax merry-go-round

The still-new Value Addad Tax (VAT) continues to suffer running-in prohleme. A person hought a flat and reported the transaction. The Treasury added 12 per cent to the price as VAT, for calculating the capital gains tax. The man pointed out that VAT was included in the etated purchase price. The Treasury asked him to suhmit a receipt testifying that the 12 per cent bad indeed heen paid. The omhudsman pointed out that the obligation to pay VAT rests with the sellar, not the huyer. The buyer does not have to prove anything. That

Linked bonds and commercial bank shares up

TEL AIVIV. - Profit-taking was evident in the shares market yesterday as nimble speculators slepped in and sold holdings which had appreciated sharply during the "post-Leumi strike rally." The commercial bank shares continued strong, with advances registered by all shares in the group. Trading volume continued to drop and totalled IL85m.

The vastly undervalued index-linked bond market attracted buyers and prices reacted and moved up smartly. The 90 per cent linked bonds had the best of it, with gains of up to three per cent. Others moved higher by as much as two per cent. Trading in bonds also slipped and was IL112.9m.

The relatively aharp gains recorded by the commercial bank shares in the past few sessions are a definite sign that the country's banking institutions are intent on doing their utmost to have their shares show yields in excess of the rise in the cost-of-living index. While it may take some "market muscle" to achieve this, it seems that it may well be in the offing.

Bank-Leumi continued to lead the pack with a gain of three points, to 484, on a market Stocks & bondsthe market report leading turnover of IL2.6m. Gains of two points were chalked up by IDB, Union Bank, Hapoalim and General Bank. FIBI and Mizrahi were one point higher.

Mortgage bank sharee were mixed. However, Carmel (R) took a nosedive, with a loss of nearly 10 per cent. Telahot (B) was down by 6.3 per cent. Industrial Development Bank shares were "sellers only."

Profit-taking was in evidence in the insurance group. Arych was down by more than 7 per cent, while Ararat IL1 was "sellers only." The IL5 Ararat shares were 5.5 per cent lower.

Motor House was well ahead with a jump of 9,1 per cent, to an evan 600. Delek (R) slumpcd by nearly 7 per cent. Israel Electric suffered from the "sellers only" blucs, as was the case with Cold Storage ILI shares.

Sollers had the upper hand in the land development and real estate sector. Rasaco ordinary was "sellers only." and Azorim fell by nearly 5 per cent. Ispro was a 6.6 per cent loser.

Moller Textiles and Eiron IL1 were good features in a downward moving industrial group. The former was 'buyers only" while the latter gained 15 per cent on a small turnover. Electric Wire and Cables, both bearer and registered, was "sellers only," as was the case with Ta'al (R).

Profit-taking was also felt among investment company shares. Ampa, which had risen by more than 37 per cent last week, was down by nearly 5 per cent. The Clai group of shares came up with losses. Clal Real Estate was nearly 10 per cent lowcr, while Clal Trade suffered a full 10 per cent loss. Clai Industries was 4.1 per cent lower. Amissar options were felled for a 10 per cent drop. The Israel pound lost 15 agorot against the U.S. dollar in foreign currency transactions.

A disappearing mandate

AIDED by a number of coalition Knesset Members hashily recalled from abroad especially for the occasion, the Government last night handily defeated the several motions of noconfidence tabled in parliament by opposition parties.

Yet, as Labour chief Shimon Peres remarked, there can be little doubt that had the same vote been taken out in the street, the Government would have come down with a crash.

Thal, needless to say, is not the way in which a national administration can be turned out in Israel. The only public opinion poll that matters is the general elsction. And in the absence of by-elections that may indicate as in Britain, a general loss of support for the government in power, as in Britain, there is no compulsion on it to advance the otherwise appointed date of the regular four-year ballot.

Five years ago, however, the country learned that a massive show of public disaffection, which finds expression within the ruling core as well, can make an impact. The present regime appears to be fast approaching that point. Beyond that point, this time, there can only lie a fresh bld for a new mandate.

Mr. Begin's coalition has been plagued with defections almost from the start of its career. This was largely inevitable. The coalition agreement sought to bring under one roof forces committed to both democracy and fascism, civil liberties and religious coercion, sanity as well as insanity in foreign affairs. Sooner or later, something was bound to give. But the High Court's decision on Monday in the Eilon Morsh ease, coming right after Mr. Dayan's resignation as foreign minister, has made further compromise no longer feasible. For what is at stake is nothing less than the rule of law in our society.

Should Eilon Morch be removed, in accordance with the court's injunction, or should that command be ignored, or circumvented? That is the question, Gush Emunim has already served notice that it will resist any attempt to have the settlement dismantled. They now have the backing not only of the Renascence Party, but also of half the Herut parliamentary faction - and of Agriculture Ministsr Sharon.

Mr. Sharon, whose sole purpose in the Cabinet, as he now admits, has been to spread Jewish settlements in the administered territories, is reported to bave threatened to bolt over Ellon Moreh.

This rightist concentration of self-appointed national saviours represents a distinct minority of the people. But it is a minority that has a claim on some of Mr. Begin's most ablding sentlments.

To placate it, he may yet seek to meet it halfway - by riding roughshod over the will of the majority, by bending the law beyond recognition, and by making a self-fulfilling prophecy of the world's hostility.

This would be intolerable. And if there is any doubt (as there must, after all, be in any democracy) as to what the majority's will really is, let the people be asked.

State Comptroller, the Broadcasting Authority plenum, the press and others about Barel, and the plenum was finally supposed to deal with the problem at a recent meeting - even though most of the members don't even remember what the two-yearnent le a In a 90-minute discussion, the 12 members of the 31-member plenum who were present supported a suggestion by Authority director-general Yosef Lapid: Fatal must decide by the next plenum meeting whether to take a job in Hebrew TV or whether to take three months' leave. In either case, Lapid promised, the director-general would again study all the arguments from both sides in depth if Fatal agreea to withdraw his complaints to the State Comptroller and the other bodies.

STANDARDS OF JUDGMENT

The Post's PHILIP GILLON examines Moshe Sharon's perceptions of South Africa and finds in them disturbing implications for Israel.

NEARLY 30 years have passed since I left South Africa, the land where I was born, to settle in Israel, and I have never been back, even on a visit. I no longer hold South African citizenship. Neverthcless, it was with indignation as a former South African, and apprehension as an Israell, that I read Moshe Sharon's apologia for the republic, "The Eye of the Beholder" (Jcrusalem Posi Magazine October 12). What is more, I suspect that my indignation will be shared by all present or former South Africans, irrespective of their political opinions.

The whole basis of Sharon's ease is his startling discovery, of which he is Inordinalely proud, that South Africa is geographically part of the Dark Continent, and so should not be judged morally by Western European Ideals and standards. He writes: "Western intellectuals have a tendency to apply Western lerms of reference to any consideration of allen cultures and social and political systems The trouble is that the application of double standards of morality as far as South Africa is concerned has achieved a record The white South Africans until very recently have made the mistake of referring to themselves as Europeans

On the basis of South Africa's bcing an African country, Sharon claims that it must be judged by comparisons with the conduct of leaders of the new African states, chiefly by reference to Idl Amin. former leader of Uganda, Compared with Idl Amin's policies of genocide, the practice of apartheid does not strike Sharon as so revolting. I doubt

IN HIGH WINDS and heavy seas, the ship is slowly sinking. The captain is discussing the problem with the first mate: the one thinks it best to go due east; the other would like to try south-south-cast. Some of the passengers acem quite indifferent and others are rioting on the deck. The purser has begun a series of lecturcs on Jewish history for the rioters. Hc is convinced that this will improve their discipline.

The crew are desperately busy, do-ing the best they can in the circumstances. Some of them are repainting the captain's cabin; the rest are stringing coloured lights across C deck.

In other words, although the educational establishment of this country is large and impressive, it is also expensive, cumbersome. joyless - and dysfunctional. At fairly regular intervals we institute reforms, some very extensive, some less so. And shortly after each whether there is any South African, liberal or right wing, who would welcome this linkage with Idi Amin.

IN FACT, the application to themselves by white South Africans of the term "Europeans" was not just a semantic error, a sort of unfortunate sllp of the tongue, as Sbaron makes out. South Africans, whether Afrikaner. English or Jewish, were and are immensely proud of their Europcan herltsgc.

Sharon Is at great pains to review South African bistory at length In order to prove that white South Africans are not interlopers who went to Africa a few years ago, but have been rooted in the soll for generations. In reading up that history, he seemed to miss some of the country's proudest achievements, all rooted in the tradltion of European Ideals.

The Union of South Africa was ereated in 1910 by the Liberal British government that replaced the Imperialist regime of Joseph Chamberlain. The Afrikaners had appealed successfully for their right to self-determination on the basis of the European ideals Sbaron despises so much.

South Africa fought in the two great wars against German despotism, on the side of free Europc, Both Afrikaners and British served in considerable numbers, and with distinction, in these conflicts. Jan Smuts was a member of the war cabinets, and became a fieldmarshal. He was one of the architects of the League of Nations, and later of the United Nations. South Africans always adhered, In theory, to the finest traditions of Western Europe. In fact, even members of the far right wiog describe their country as "a bastion of democracy" and "an outpost of Western civilizatioo." To tell them that they should be jndged by the same atandards as Idl Amin is not only nonsense; it is very offensive nonsense.

Indeed, the osw premier, P.W. Botha, is elaiming that his dramatic reforms ars proof of change in Western European terms, not those of Idi Amin. As a person who bas always loathed apartheld, both in concept and execution, I very much hope that be will make good his promises.

ALL THIS may explain my indigna-tion as a former South African. But wby does Sharon excite my apprehension as an Israell?

Sharon is one of the intellectual supporters of the present government: at one stage be served as Prime Minister Begin's adviser on — of all things — the handling of Israell minorities. I fear that there is a great danger that bs will make another startling discovery: that Israel is part of the Asian continent, and should therefore be judged by. Asian standards.

The whole perspective changes if we compare Israel with Iran, Vietnam, Cambodia, Syria and China, and apply to us Asians the standard of conduct of these, our fallow continentals. After all, we do not hang people in the streets, or massacre them by the hundred thousands. So what harm is there in a little land seizure, or knocking a few Arab wall charts, the new curriculum and that ancient audio-visual ald, the teacher.

OF COURSE, there might be some connection between the schools and the soclety in which they operate. Israeli society la aggressive, authoritarian, competitive, sexist, impatient and discourteous. And these are the qualities that can be found in the institutioos of Israell society. The Knesset is one example, and the schools are another.

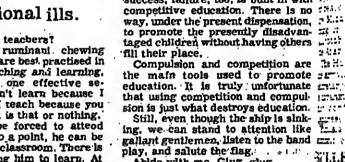

Israell parents are unreliable in business, cheat the income tax, and impudence for a parent, who boasts at home of having smuggled his electrie razor through customs and broken the speed laws on his way to a parent-leacher meeting, to express his disgust at the copying that goes on during examinations. And why doesn't somebody do something about it, is what be would like to know One fact about education is that both learning and teaching are basic human activitiea, as natural as breathing and no less essential. No animal is born possessing the information it requires to survive long enough to breed. The more advanced its evolution, the more there is for It to learn. The survival of the species depends on the built-in need of the human animal to learn and to teach. There is nothing more enjoyable than doing what comes naturally: but If this is so, why isn't It so?

many desperate teachers? Except for a ruminani. chewing and awallowing are best practised in that order. Teaching and learning, too, have only one effective sequence. You don't learn because I want to teach: I teach because you want to learn. It is that or nothing. A child can be forced to attend school and, up to a point, he can be forced to sit in a classroom. There is no way of forcing him to learn. At eight o'clock the child sits down for a lesson in mathematics. At a quarter to nine be is sitting there for Israsi is geographically and politically a part of the Middle East, and must come to terms with its neighbours. But this docs not mean that we must abandoo our adherence to the ideals and ideology of Western elvilization. From the very beginning, this has been the sine qua non of the Zionisi case. It will be a great ealamity if people like Sharoo provide some kind of intellectual justification for those "practical meo" prepared to use force to obtain their ends, and in the process to ignore the despised ethics and moral values of Western Europe that they elaim to consider irrelevant to our problems.

classroom, or all of these bought for a good mark. The great advantage of competitive education is that there must be a top 20 per cent, and the only disadvantage is that there must also be a bottom 20 per cent. Just as much as success, failure, too, is built in with competitive education. There is no this way, under the present dispensation, ? to promote the presently disadvantaged children without having others

OVER THE last 10 years, and with great effort, the Ministry of Education and Culture has reformed the schools. Two classes were taken off the elementary schools and joined together with one from the high schools to make the junior high schools. Some of these remained in dependent, and some were attached to the high schools.

Most schools have changed in the past decade: some are blgger, some are smaller. In fact, the only things that remalo the same are the children who attend them, the teachers who work in them and the society of which they are a part. Since that has not aaved the ship.

cducational system doesn't do what it is supposed to. Schools today provide an enriched, multi-flavoured environment. There are television scts, new textbooks, changes in curriculum, wall charts and more Jewish studies. There are audiovisual aids, computer-assisted instruction, songs on tape, flamel boards, coloured pencils, brighter classrooms and hot dinners. The general school population shows how it feels about these by eating the hot dinners, scattering the garbage over the sebool grounds defacing the books, breaking the windows, stealing what isn't nalled down and, as before, ignoring the

EUROVISION CONTEST

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir. - My wife and I cheered and were cheered by the repeat performance of the Eurovision Sbow produced by Israel TV. It remains an outstanding example of high quality International public relations. And this is something our beleaguered nation needs more of, especially now.

The opportunity to give the world another insight into what makes Israel tick - the opening random scenes of Jerusalem couldn't bave been better - should never be turncd aside. Is there oothing the public can do to mske TV House reconsider its decision not to present the 1980 Eurovision Show? Surely in this particular instance, knowing our desperate need for positive internstional public relatioos, the government should put up the money. To losc a multi-million audience and the repeat chance to offer Israel at its best is indeed short-sighted.

Please let's do it again. LEE ARNOLD Kibbutz Ncot Mordechai.

SLOW MAIL

To the Editor of The Jerusalem Post Sir, - Maybe the powers that be could be persuaded to let us poor carthlings know why an aerogram mailed from the U.S. now takes three to four weeka instead of the former one week to reach its destination in Israel.

For us, who have children and/or parents in the U.S. and very much depend on those weekly communications for our general wellbeing, this slow delivery of our mail adds insult to injury to an already Inlolerable sliuation caused by Inflation, atrikes, bureaucracy, etc.
